FOREWORD

There is something singular about a high school student—you can recognize one anywhere. About him there is vitality and a love of life. He wants to know and experience everything, for he is young and life is on his side. Yet, in spite of his exuberance, he knows the value of thought and he wants to make use of every moment of his time. He has the desire to capture precious moments—to catch them and to hold them. His three years of high school go quickly; and though he tries to put as much into this time as he can, before he realizes it his school years are gone. He has gained knowledge, however, and has the memory of this special part of his youth.

This book is designed to be a record of one of these three very important years—years made richer and more meaningful by associations with people. These people give each school year the special significance which will make it memorable in the years to come. On the preceding pages are pictured the community and the school, both of which have made important contributions to our remembrances. But these institutions are only a framework for life, and in themselves would be unimportant—the people give them meaning. In the 1960 EUCLIDIAN we have tried to capture the personality of youth; we have tried to capture a part of the lives of the many people who have made our year what it was.

ALMA MATER

How many of you left High School and said, "I'll miss you, we're going to miss you, it's a wonderful place, and I'll be back in a few years.

Well, you're not alone.

Every year, thousands of students leave our school, but they don't leave behind a broken heart.

They leave behind a piece of their heart that will always be with them.

That's why we have a special program for our graduates. We invite them back to campus every year for a special reunion. It's not just a chance to see old friends and reminisce about the good times we had in school. It's a chance to see how far we've come and how much we've grown.

It's a chance to see that we're not just a bunch of kids who went to school together. We're now a community of people who care about each other and want to see each other succeed.

So, if you're a graduate of our school, please come back to

Groping in the realm of the abstract, the youth tackles the printed page and devours it. For a time his books are food and drink to him, containing all the sustenance he needs. Glorifying in being able to digest the words and their meanings, he transfers them from the book to his own mind. He realizes that the mind is one of man's greatest possessions, and as a good student seeks to nourish and develop its every facet.

Youth's mind combines with his heart to give him spirit and faith in himself, his team, and his country. Spirit buoys him up so that he can go down in defeat and still emerge cheering, asking for another chance.

Happiness between two young people brings with it the sweet promise of tomorrow. They do not see the lake, but they see its beauty in their dreams of what will be. It is not the mature, sophisticated understanding of adult minds, but rather the uncomplicated acceptance of youth. Tomorrow holds everything for them because they are young and the word "cannot" does not exist. They will go on to maturity and the scope of possibilities will narrow, but the beauty of the moment is theirs and, if they are careful, the promise of tomorrow will go with them until their tomorrows are gone.

It is not easy for a youth to believe himself a failure. To accept defeat is difficult, for youth must win. Every fiber of a young body strives toward victory, and when this goal is met, he is happy. But victory merely whets his appetite for greater challenge—he is rejuvenated and fights still harder the next time. To give up is uncommon in youth, because the horizon of what could be is as wide as the sky and as endless as the stars.

Loneliness is ice-water and sour milk to the diet of the mind. It is the feeling which comes not only from being alone, for it is possible to be lonely in a crowd. It is rather the failure of a meeting of minds. It is the result of a lack of comprehension of thought on the part of others. It is something which is not easily overcome, even by the strongest of men; for loneliness is a lost thought or a dead hope.

Thought is a wonderful thing. To be able to drift endlessly at the height of the imagination is a vacation from the reality which can sometimes be so troublesome. Where is she? Who knows, and who will ever know? For it is only in thought that one can be truly alone. It is in the thoughts of youth that the future is born. It is in her dreams and in the dreams of her contemporaries that tomorrow is decided.

Music is the art of the soul. It is the abandon and escape of the imagination at its most profound and sublime height. It is the beauty of silver clouds and blue waters. It expresses every emotion, every thought. Drifting, floating, it carries away those who can be deaf to all but the wonder and depth which only the magic of music can impart.

Laughter is youth's own specialty; it is the mirror of his joys and happiness—the camouflage for his cares and troubles. His laugh is not always a truly happy one; for youth bears his burdens alone, laughing sometimes merely to lighten another's load. But when he is truly happy, the youth laughs with a sincerity that tells the world his soul is singing. For laughter kindles a spark from within that makes hope and faith burn brighter.

THIS IS FALL

Autumn is beauty, for color dances everywhere. Chased by the wind, it plays with the sky and the dying grass, and teases you as it flies about, and makes you dizzy, for you want to catch it. The air is new and vibrant and it seems to say hurry. And you start to run with the wind and you run until you are breathless. And the world is a kaleidoscope of fire and blue. For a minute you stop, and you can see the leaves and smell them. The wind spins them into red and orange funnels, and you hear them cracking under your feet. You stand alone against the wind and the sky, and the breeze pulls and tugs at your hair.

Confusion and anticipation

Juniors, confused on the first day of school?

School begins on a bright September day.

Receiving their newly assigned homerooms is a big thing for sophomores.

mark the first day of school

The first grim reminder of the return to school was probably a sign in a department store window advertising back-to-school specials. It was then only a few short weeks until the first day of school. The days sailed by, as summer ones do. Curiosity mixed with apprehension was the feeling that first day of classes. There were the inevitable mix-ups with students being late, going to the wrong class, or getting lost in the halls. Being sophomores was the fate of one-third of our school. For them this day held special terrors. "Where's the library?" "Where's the gym?" and "Where's 326?" asked the thoroughly bewildered underclassmen. The first day also brought with it the realization that this was the beginning of a new school year, a year with many possibilities. One had to decide what he was going to do with this year. What would he learn and how well would he learn it? The truly serious student was determined to work hard in order to help build a better school and community. While taking part in the fun and activities that are a definite part of the school year, he realized that the beginning of school also brought with it decisions to make and work to do.

ADMINISTRATION AND FACULTY

As he gropes through the darkness of ignorance, reaching toward the light of knowledge, the student needs a guide to hold the beacon before him, to keep him on the right path. Wavering in his course, he must have someone to dispel his indecision. The administration and the faculty always assume these major roles in any institution of learning. The faculty tries to give him some of its knowledge, while the administration guides him in the use of his new possession. Helping him to select the right career, directing his attention to the many pitfalls along the way, and inspiring in him a sincere love of learning, they make his student years truly worthwhile.

SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

Dr. Lester E. Angene

Certainly no one stays the relentless rush of the seasons! Only in memory prompted by the fine record of this 1960 Euclidian can we make them static for the moment. We thus have the illusion of arresting the swift passage of time punctuated by the seasons which come and go so rapidly that the future becomes present and then past in a virtual blur. For busy people the whole of life is likewise all too brief for the work needing to be done. Herrick said, "Gather ye rosebuds while ye May/ old time is still a-flying." Life is short; art is long. Since time is limited we need to make worthy use of it. Your school experience should have taught you the value of time and the durable satisfactions on which time should be largely spent.

For everything there is a time and a season. Each brings forth his fruit in his season. The word has come to suggest not merely a time of year, but a time for appropriate activities. The season passes; so passes opportunity. It is fervently hoped that your school season in life's year has been fully fruitful, equipping you with the values, attitudes, appreciation, knowledge, and skills you will need all your life.

Sincerely,
Lester E. Angene
Superintendent of Schools

DIRECTOR OF SECONDARY EDUCATION

PRINCIPAL

Clifford G. Owens

Progress occurs when people become dissatisfied with the things they have. This is true in all lines of endeavor. Each school year brings with it a renewed enthusiasm on the part of faculty and students to make the present year the very best ever. If we look back over the many accomplishments, few disappointments, and the real joy of achievement, we agree that this has truly been an outstanding year.

Each season has its challenges. With the opening of school in the fall we must make every effort to get a good start. We must find our bearings and chart our course. There are new faces, new experiences, and new horizons. The happy and the successful person is the one who can keep all influences in his proper perspective. As we progress through the school year, we settle down to a routine and must not lose sight of the need for improvement and change to meet our objective. Spring brings with it all the fragrance and exuberance of life; a renewed vitality as we approach the end of the school year. Life is always a refreshing challenge. Be one of its active participants.

Congratulations to all who had a part in the preparation of this wonderful yearbook. Good luck and best wishes to the class of 1960.

Sincerely,
Clifford G. Owens
Principal

Making the change-over to the I.B.M. system of recording and filing was part of MR. GRAHAM's job this year. He also made sure that there were enough classes of the right subject matter for the number of students enrolled, and that the students were equally distributed in the classrooms. He was also the advisor to the senior counselors concerning baccalaureate and commencement.

Aiding undecided students in their choice of a college, MRS. SHEATS had the over-all responsibility for counselling both boys and girls about future careers. She was in charge of Career Week, as well as the testing program at the school. She also had direct supervision of the home arts and girls' physical education departments.

Dealing mainly with teachers, MR. HUNTER made sure that there was always a teacher assigned to a class. Students aren't the only ones who have problems, and in democratically conducted meetings with department chairmen, and also by personal classroom observation, he sought to help Euclid's teachers get to the base of their problems and instruct more efficiently.

ASSISTANT PRINCIPALS

Mr. Bruce Graham, Mrs. Harriet Sheats, Mr. William Hunter

The welfare of all the girls in the school is a time-consuming job in itself. MISS GILLMAN's waiting room was usually filled with girls seeking her help, but she still managed to have time to supervise all the social, academic, and service clubs in the school, and take charge of the achievement reports of both the boys and the girls.

DEAN OF GIRLS

Miss Wilma Gillman

One of the busiest people in the school is DR. BERGEM, the Dean of Boys. Acting as an understanding advisor, Dr. Bergem is involved constantly in the personal and school problems of the boys attending Euclid. He assists them in decisions concerning their futures and tries to give their school lives a purpose.

DEAN OF BOYS

Dr. Jerry Bergem

A meeting of the minds

And in all phases of school life

With the snow falling softly, Euclid students walked up the many walks to the high school. The custodians were already busy shoveling the snow from the walks, anxious to be through and able to go inside the warm and lively building. Upstairs, the librarians were preparing for the early morning rush by reshelving books and straightening their records. As the bell rang and the day officially began, the office staff started distributing absence lists, their work carrying them through the day. Everyone gets hungry, and with the third period underway the cafeteria staff prepared the wide variety of food offered to hungry Euclidites. As the day went on, the nurse's list of ailing people grew longer and longer. Mrs. Wise took temperatures and called parents, busy even as the last bell rang. Now, with the school day over, Euclid was alive with the jangling of keys and the clanging of pails as the cleaning staff took over the care of the nearly empty building and prepared for another school day.

CLASSES

Part of the formula of learning is contained within the minds of those who are to be taught. There are the light-hearted ones who live in a careless world for themselves alone. They plan for a tomorrow that will never come—and time passes them by. And there are the ever wondering ones who are lights in the darkness of ignorance, who become rich with the priceless gift of learning, yet humble with the knowledge of what they do not know. But one is necessary to the other, and each is a part of a class. With books as his tools and a teacher as his guide, each student must discover the magic combination of a book and a wondering mind to derive the most from the very heart of his school life, his classes.

"Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow . . ." These are not the words of a happy optimist but of a senior ENGLISH student memorizing a famous speech from Macbeth. In another room a junior is searching out the symbolism in "Thanatopsis," while his sophomore friend quotes, ". . . for Brutus is an honorable man." These are students participating in Euclid's four-year English course—a course strongly favoring literature and creative writing.

Under the capable assistance of Mr. Jack Jenkins, Euclid's aspiring actors and actresses were taught the basic essentials of stage performance. Not only did students learn how to act, but they also studied the history of the theater and many facts concerning past writers and performers. Mr. Jenkins taught DRA-MATICS as an art and many of his proteges have gone on to promising futures in the legitimate theater.

A student, entering the room of Miss Rust's JOURNALISM class one day, would probably have backed out in surprise and confusion. Instead of finding a class immersed in its work of writing, an odd scene was presented: all the students were gathered around a table begging it to rise and tell the future. The table was not trustworthy, however. Its predictions proved false, and the class soon resumed its natural work of learning newspaper techniques, and clear concise writing.

ENGLISH CLASS

Et tu, Brute!

Dan Geddes and Bill Pugh attempt creative pantomime.

DRAMATICS CLASS

JOURNALISM CLASS

Journalism is one of Euclid's most interesting and valuable classes.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Right here's the northeast tip of the southern section of the Western Hemisphere . . .

At least two courses of SOCIAL STUDIES were required for graduates of Euclid High. The school felt that government and American history were necessary to the student's understanding of his country. Social studies gave him a chance to discuss governmental problems that might have confronted his ancestors and might well confront him in the future. A better comprehension of foreign problems was received by the student and it was hoped he would emerge a better citizen with an intelligent and open mind.

LANGUAGE CLASS

In language lab, Euclid students, as well as members of adult education classes, learn the proper pronunciation par excellence of the language they are studying.

Mrs. Zimmerman goes through many pains to teach her French classes proper diction.

"Bonjour classe," comes through the earphones to the second, third, and fourth year French students. They are able to reply "Bonjour, Madame," into the microphones before them and hear themselves at the same time as Mrs. Zimmerman does. This is a new way of teaching LANGUAGES that Euclid has just adopted. French, Spanish, and German classes all use the lab in the experimental course. Students learn other languages by hearing and repetition much as they learned to speak their own tongue.

MATH CLASS

In Mr. Rinkes' solid geometry class a bunch of cubes is examined by a bunch of squares.

Trying to visualize the abstract is somewhat difficult for most people, and this is what makes MATHEMATICS one of the most interesting and challenging subjects taught at Euclid High. The enthusiasm our math teachers show for their subject and the effort they put forth to help students learn makes math a popular subject. Serious students spend a great deal of time absorbing new formulas and solving problems, so that the teacher's efforts do not go unrewarded.

Boom! resounds through the lab as a student brings a lighted match to prepared hydrogen. The first weeks of a SCIENCE course are always confusing, and contain surprises every day, but most students will admit that the sciences—biology, chemistry, and physics—are some of the most interesting courses Euclid offers. With its many facets and outlets for the imagination, science is well suited to the American youth who desires to explore the new and exciting.

CHEMISTRY CLASS

Diligent chemistry students experiment into the unknown.

BIOLOGY CLASS

There's something fishy in biology lab as Mr. DeLeon instructs Sharon Kinzie, Rose Mary Shultz, and Denny Drummond.

Learning to drive was a serious responsibility that was undertaken with serious intent. Although the course was at times a lot of fun, the importance of learning to drive correctly was never forgotten. The good-natured DRIVING instructors were helped in their jobs by safe-driving films and the co-operation of a class of people learning to accept a mature responsibility in a mature way.

Realizing that the automobile is a necessary part of our modern world, Euclid High offers to those students so inclined, a basic training in the complexities of the structure of the automobile. Co-ordinating the skill of the hands with that of the mind, each boy finds in the AUTO SHOP a satisfaction in at last discovering the technique of putting together that which he has taken apart.

The two forty-five minute periods seemed to fly by quickly, as serious ART students hurried to complete their assigned projects. The swish of a spray gun sounded in the crafts room as a girl put the finishing touches on her enamel. A dab of paint here, a few strokes of a pen there, and Euclid's future artists began realizing their ambitions, or just learning to be proficient at an enjoyable pastime.

SWIMMING CLASS

"Feed them, they'll go away." The camera catches an underwater cross-section of Euclid students perfecting their strokes.

"Foul!" shouted the leader as the ball flew over the net. Sighs of good-natured disappointment were heard from the girls as the announcement came that the ball was no good, and side out was called. The volleyball game was all in good fun and healthy exercise, as are all the other activities in the PHYSICAL EDUCATION program at Euclid High. The best equipment, including the swimming pool, provided for a well-rounded gym program. The capable leaders and swim cadets were the student part of the supervisors who helped make gym a safe and enjoyable part of school life.

GYM CLASS

A tense moment occurs in a volleyball game as Euclid girls give the ball that final shove that will send it over the net.

BUSINESS CLASS

Mr. Smith directs business machines class.

Teaching students the operations of a business organization was the purpose of the BUSINESS course. Student secretaries learned what they would be expected to do in the business world and were assigned work for which they were personally responsible. Practice forms were completed and letters typed on a variety of machines to insure over-all competence. Special emphasis was laid on spelling and mathematics, for these are recognized as important prerequisites of efficient office practice.

Typing students learn speed and accuracy.

SEWING CLASS

Sew one, rip two. Euclid's industrious sewing classes learn to be future homemakers.

A youthful, potential cook acting as hostess, served a well prepared meal to one of Euclid's more fortunate teachers, while in another part of the building a fashion show was presented to Euclid's girls. Both actions showed the fine results of Euclid's HOME ARTS program. Using the newest equipment, the girls were taught the best and easiest methods to accomplish the art of homemaking. Perhaps years from now that same hostess will remember her early training in home arts when she realizes that her own family has been made happier by the value of her experiences.

POOR GIRL: "Yes, Pop, but I couldn't have done it without my dictionary from the bookstore."

ANNOUNCER: "You can buy anything at the bookstore!"

The P.A. CLUB brought many kinds of unusual announcements to the slowly-awakening students without fail every morning at 8:25. Whether it was for the bookstore, the student council, or any other school organization, all announcements and important incidents of general interest were brought faithfully to the entire student body by this hard-working organization.

"Point of order!" boomed the voice of the parliamentarian during a heated debate in the STUDENT COUNCIL. An excited homeroom representative was trying to win his point, and it was easy to see that interest was high and opinion varied among the other members. President Dennis Bathory gave the floor to the parliamentarian, who quoted Roberts Rules of Order, which called for a vote on the issue. The next area of business was the forming of a committee to discuss a problem which had been presented to the council concerning the "E" Room. Each student scribbled hurried notes for his Student Council report as discussion involving appropriating money to a club was begun. The period came to a close quickly, and after a motion was made and seconded the meeting was adjourned. The students left the room avidly discussing topics the council had presented to them. They hurried to their next class, glad to have been a part of this fine example of student government.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Jim Maresh

Though haggard and worn, their faces were happy in the knowledge that they had created. Stories had been corrected, headlined, and typed; pictures had been taken, and the completed product was on the presses which sang and made music to the ears of the listening editors. They could relax now for a day—the Survey was coming out on time! The sleepless nights and hectic days were forgotten, for the thrill of seeing one's story in print is one which a member of the SURVEY EDITORIAL STAFF would not exchange for any other.

Summer sun is shut out as the Survey editorial staff prepares for the 1959-60 season.

The SURVEY BUSINESS STAFF made the production of the school newspaper possible. Money was necessary before the paper could be printed, and an efficient system of distribution was needed in order for it to reach the hands of its readers. It was a hard job, but the staff worked willingly, spending long hours selling advertisements, not only for the Survey, but also for the football and basketball programs. Selling programs, distributing papers, and collecting money during the subscription drive increased the responsibility. All was not work, though, and at the end of the year the staff could look back on an experience rich with fun and new friendships.

EUCLIDIAN EDITORIAL STAFF

Row One: L. Marino, P. Jacobs, G. Coltrin, K. McMahon, P. Krieger, K. King. Row Two: D. Elliott, M. Fedor, J. Burns, D. Peterson, J. Crawford, D. Bathory. Row Three: G. Nowacek, M. Vincent, J. Vadnal.

Devil-may-care Jon Vadnal and other Euclidian staffers prepare for their campaign assembly.

Sounds from the EUCLIDIAN EDITORIAL STAFF: ELLIOTT: My mind is made up! Don't confuse me with the facts! VINCENT: But George and Jon, you've GOT to take those pictures. NOWACEK: I'm hungry. Who stole my lunch TODAY? VADNAL: I'm sorry I'm late—I had to set my hair. BURNS: Krieger, wake up! We've got copy to write. KRIEGER: But the only time I can write copy is three o'clock in the morning. KING: But it's a pretty cat. Why can't we keep it? BATHORY: I don't have time to crop pictures. I might get a "B" on my report card! CRAWFORD: Who stole my rulers? FEDOR: But I'm not fat, I'm just healthy. JACOBS: I'm in the mood for love. PETERSEN: Who wants to take ME home? McMAHON: Don't tell me what I'm trying to do. Let me figure it out for myself. MARINO: Everybody come to the Heights game. I'm marching! COLTRIN: Do you realize there are fifteen hundred underclassmen in this school?

All the thought that went into the making of the yearbook would be of no avail without money to put the ideas into practice. Financing the EUCLIDIAN is a hard and serious task which must be undertaken by capable students. These students must take charge of the sales and advertising campaigns, concessions at football games, individual pictures, and any other way to produce revenue they can dream up. All was not drudgery this year though, for the work became fun when it was done at parties and with good friends. Lasting friendships were formed as individuals merged into a team to meet emergencies. A highly successful group, the 1960 EUCLIDIAN BUSINESS STAFF sold 2240 books, a record accomplishment, and more than enough ads to keep the books balanced.

Like man, I'm from way down under . . .

Poetry is judged by depth, impact, and musical quality.

Drawing from the wealth of talent in the student body, the EUCUYO presented a magazine filled with pleasurable reading. Letting the mind and fancy run free, these stories, essays, and poems explored a world of creative art seldom seen by the average student. It was edited and prepared entirely by the student editors who carefully selected the best of the material submitted to be printed. Presenting their talent search and sales campaign, sponsoring a dance to make money, acknowledging personally every contribution, and editing the chosen works—these duties kept the EUCUYO staff busy all year. The four editors, working with the rest of the editorial staff, coordinated the book and found that creating it was more fun than work.

The goal of anyone dreaming of a literary future was membership in INTERNATIONAL QUILL AND SCROLL. I.Q.S. is an honorary society composed of the people who have shown outstanding interest and ability in the field of journalism. During the spring, the new members were chosen on the basis of ability and personality and were inducted at an impressive banquet. The I.Q.S. pin was worn with pride by students who had spent much time and effort in one of our school's publications groups.

“Quick, get the projector down to 204. In Euclid’s CAMERA CLUB, amateur photographers could meet with others who shared their interest. Improving techniques, being a service to the school, and having fun were its purposes. A special pride came from seeing a picture one took appear slowly in the developing vats, and a still greater pride came from looking at it and knowing it was really good. Their pictures were used in the Survey, printed in the Euclid News-Journal, and some were just hung on the darkroom walls for their own enjoyment.

Carlson creates spirit.

The SPIRITS drifted from room to room, leaving behind the tangible results of their effort to create that very intangible something called school spirit. Haunting Euclid with intoxicating good feeling, they placed "Go Euclid" posters and signs which pictured their emblem, a ghost. The members' names were kept secret because spirit would be defeated if it were identified with specific people, but their efforts were no secret for they could be seen in pep assemblies and on the faces of people who proudly said, "I go to Euclid High!"

FALL SPORTS

Hurry from class to the locker room. Rush from its sweaty warmth into the chill, crisp air. Perform calisthenics—one, two, three, four. Run a lap, don't stop, run some more! Bodies sweat even in the cold air. Shoes are muddy. Huddle to hear a pep talk and plans for Friday night. Run back to the locker room, shower quickly, and dress. Listen to the jokes flying back and forth through the steamy atmosphere. Walk home in the dark with hunger pangs wrenching the stomach. Friday, come back to school—tonight is the night. Dress quickly and steady those jumping nerves. Burst from the locker room all together amid cheering crowds of parents and best girls. Feel the brisk air awaken every nerve and sharpen the voices. Tonight there must be victory.

And away we go . . . The harriers stop for last minute instructions in a downpour at the Highland meet.

Late to class, boys?

Cross Country . . .

Though its participants are hard-working and successful, Cross Country never receives the recognition it deserves from the student body. Working long and diligently through the summer months in order to be ready for the grueling runs in the fall, the boys were in top physical condition for the weekend meets. Coming in second in the Lake Erie League and first in the district, eight boys from the team qualified for the state meet at Columbus. Euclid placed 5th at state, which was the best the team had ever done. Ralph Francis, an outstanding harrier, received the Panther of the Week for his contribution to the team, and other members were honored by acceptance into the Letterman's Club.

Football... Second in

"Ready?" "Fight!" "Ready?" "Fight!" The voices of a determined group of hard-working boys came from the practice field as the night of the big game approached. Spirits soared high as the 1959 football team, sparked by such outstanding players as Bruce Mason, a Press all-star, and Pete Mushinko, a member of the News dream team, charged out onto the field. In the first game against Maple Heights, halfback Jim Thomas gained ninety yards rushing, and Tom Gortz scored twelve of Euclid's twenty points, making it a Euclid victory. The second game against West Tech was the best game of the season offensively. The Panthers gained three hundred sixty-seven yards and shut-out West Tech 30-0. Ron Patrick set a school record of one hundred fifty-two yards gained in rushing. The game at Willoughby-North was fast-moving and exciting. Though the Panthers lost, Ron Patrick ran eighty yards for a touchdown.

The best game of the season in the opinion of Coach Don Mohr was the Panther shutout of Shaw. The Panthers refused to give ground to the tough Shaw Cardinals, and Homecoming 1959 was a success. At Cleveland Heights the team gained sixty yards on a kickoff return as Pete Mushinko and Dave Sprochi acted as the outstanding defense players. The Panthers' archrivals, St. Joseph, won the annual neighborhood contest, but George Nowacek made nine tackles and Dick Graafmeyer passed for a gain of one hundred twenty yards. Though some players received more recognition than others, it took the efforts of the entire team to bring home those Euclid victories.

Football action at its best is shown in this grappling hold by the gridmen, in a desperate attempt to gain possession of the ball.

There is one thing which instills in the sophomore pride in his new alma mater and gives him something to cheer for—this thing is football. Within his own class there is a group of hard working boys who did a great deal to promote this feeling, the J.V. football players. This year, Junior Varsity meant many things to those who took part in it. It meant hard work, it meant training, it meant teamwork, it meant fun—the fun of participating in a wonderful sport with others who shared the same interest—but most of all, it meant spirit. Perhaps the spirit was an accident, a sometime thing which came from the magic combination of talented coaches and willing, able players. But those who lived J.V. football in 1959 knew that three men, the coaches, did more for the team than any spectator realized. Whether at home or away, the players on the bench also provided a lusty cheering section for their teammates. Whether on the practice field or in uniform, all members of the J.V. football team put all they had into the game and still emerged cheering—proud possessors of the L.E.L. Championship.

The J.V.'s showed promise in their first and only game under the lights.

One of the band's most entertaining half-time shows was its presentation of Tic Tac Dough.

Precision performance ...

All right, pick up your tuba and let's start over!

Majorettes and band march downtown in the Columbus Day Parade.

the marching band

Half-time was opened by the traditional greeting—a friendly “hi” from the band and majorettes.

“I now pronounce you man and wife,” said Ralph Fross, acting as justice of the peace in the annual mock wedding performed on the band bus. The Euclid Marching Band is the possessor of many traditions, and part of the meaning of this year came from the people who took part in these traditions. The band was a spirited and talented group of students who presented a picture of precision in the bright lights of the football field at half-time. Their original themes and selections gave football fans interesting and different half-time entertainment, for the band signified spirit at Euclid High. In their blue and gold uniforms they showed to Euclid and other schools the fine teamwork and spirit which were so much a part of the 1959-60 school year.

It was a cold night and the wind whirled the falling snow into sparkling white against the lights of the Euclid Stadium. Shouts of pride burst the crisp, moving air as the Marching Majorettes came onto the field at half-time. In a flash of white skirts and silver batons, the majorettes with their wide smiles showed our opponents that although Euclid has a tough football team, we were not lacking in feminine counterparts for our mighty Panthers. The majorettes practiced long and hard to the music of the Marching Band to achieve the results shown at the games. Their flying batons became a part of the silver snow. The grace and ease with which they executed their routines was something of which every Euclid student has a right to be proud.

Cheerleaders support spirit

Cries of "Go, Panthers, Go!" resounded from the Euclid stadium as excited fans shouted their pride and faith in their team. On the track, six girls in blue and gold yelled loudest of all. Their excitement showed on their faces and in their shining eyes as they jumped and clapped for a Euclid victory. As cheerleaders, they led the yelling crowd; they were the leaders of spirit. But the cheers were only the audible part of the deep feeling of school spirit which they helped to develop. They will remember always the voices of the crowd in the stands and the flying confetti in the bright field lights, and their spirited cries will be held in the memories of Euclid students for many years to come.

Homecoming... fires, floats, fun

Students, teachers, team, band, cheerleaders, and majorettes—everyone went to the bonfire, and a hot time was had by all.

It was the Thursday before Homecoming and a red glow could be seen in the sky. "Roast Shaw!" in animated tones came from the circle of people around the glow as the Shaw dummy met its fated end in the annual Homecoming bonfire. The pep band played as the majorettes and cheerleaders led the milling students in victory yells for the mighty Panthers. The Homecoming nominees and the members of the team were introduced to the spectators at the height of the evening. As the crowd dispersed in the shadows of the dying firelight, many hurried to put the finishing touches on their club floats. Hours of fun-filled activity were involved in the making of these floats which took shape out of crepe paper and hard work. Each club was aiming for first prize in the float contest at Friday's game, and the excitement of something to come was the essence of this evening of fun and hurried anticipation.

Conquering heroes celebrate

Nowacek climbs high for the bell, and the team loudly rings out a victory.

The autumn breeze stirred the dust in the deep night and drifted around corners. Lighted by a single, lonely bulb outside the gate, the stadium was alive with the shadowy memories of the weekend now past. In the dust could be seen the milling crowds, and out of the night came their voices shouting for victory. The music of the band from the now dark E Room where Kathy Burns was crowned 1959 Homecoming queen, echoed in the stillness of the night. The nominees had passed by that lonely light only the night before in a maze of color and feeling. Now it is gone, but in the glow of that light and the dust and the leaves will be held forever the memories of Homecoming 1959.

FALL PLAY CAST

Li'l Abner... a spectacular musical

Which twin has the toni?

Al Capp's comic strip characters came to life in our auditorium as members of the student body presented the musical version of the stage play, "Li'l Abner." With a cast of over sixty, including a live pig and chickens, Dogpatch, U.S.A., "the most unnecessary spot on earth," brought to Euclid's stage the warmth, the comedy, and the sadness which made its appearance memorable. For who could forget the singing voice of Marrying Sam as he sang of that Dogpatch hero, Jubilation T. Cornpone, or the spirited cries of Mammy Yokum as she rallied the Dogpatch women to "protect the rights of womanhood." Daisy Mae finally led Li'l Abner to the altar, but the curtain closed before the final words were pronounced, leaving the audience to wonder if Daisy Mae had really caught her man.

SOPHOMORES

It was a new world—a world filled with strangeness and excitement. Junior high was left behind and the struggle to grow up had really begun. Turning his head in confusion, retracing his steps a hundred times, the sophomore tried to accustom himself to the bigness of his new school. Classes were different, too, for with high school came increased responsibility. He alone was responsible for work, and it gave him self-confidence and made him proud. He wanted to do everything at once for his mind was young and full of plans. He went to every football game because he wanted to be a real part of his school. And he cheered, softly at first, then louder as pride entered his heart. The warmth of belonging came, and he was happy as he felt himself become a part of the personality of his school.

Eager sophomores file in to their first assembly.

SOPHOMORE COUNSELORS

Miss Edith Lemon and Mr. John Reeves

"In you we vest our confidence," said the Class of 1962 in electing four outstanding members of the sophomore class to office. Working closely with the sophomore counselors, they led their class through the confusing initial year at Euclid High and brought them forth seasoned and useful citizens of our school. Planning the sophomore party was the first and only required duty in getting the members of the class acquainted with each other and the facilities of the school. Other activities were at the discretion of the counselors and class. These leaders instilled in their group a fierce pride, and a knowledge that they would be one of Euclid's best classes when they graduate in three years.

THIS IS WINTER

The sky is gray and autumn fades into the white death of winter. Snow flies around corners in whirlpools at your feet and the sidewalk is a field of white. The cold is everywhere. You walk quickly, marring the smooth surface with deep footprints, and as you turn to look at them you laugh for they seem to follow you. And the vapor of your laughter fades into the cold night air. Your eyes dance from the cold and you smile instinctively at people passing by for they, like you, are going to the warmth of clouded windows and the snapping fires of home.

Fun and frolic in the E-Room

Friends find time to relax in the large lounge.

As she finished the last of her work the student manager thought how different the E room looked devoid of people. She looked at the dark wood walls of the soda bar area and thought of the simple beauty with which it was decorated. The lounges, luxurious and comfortable, were filled with bright color and she could almost hear the laughing voices which filled them everyday. Her footsteps echoed on the floor of the huge ballroom and she could see girls sweeping by in rustling formals, while the band played to a happy audience of prom-goers. She realized what the E room meant to the students, for books and the thought of school were left outside, and only the fun and relaxation for which the center was intended remained.

WINTER SPORTS

The ground flew by under straining muscles; the ball bounced down the hardwood floor and swished through the basket amid the shouts of excited fans; there was a splash as a body entered the water. We heard the thump of sweating bodies against the mat and grimaced with the wrestler as he made a desperate attempt to pin his man. Now and then the coaches, red-faced and eager, jumped from the bench to shake a fist at the referee or help cheer the Euclid man on to victory with the rest of the team. But to most of us winter meant Friday nights and the anticipation of basketball. We walked through swirling snow and bitter wind and felt our hands and faces sting as we entered the warmth of the building. Roaring, pulsating, deafening, the entire gym was enveloped in the spirit which winter sports provided as a welcome break in the tedious routine of classes and tests.

Basketball

The varsity basketball team had a fairly successful season but seemed to hit a bright spot following its last regular game. With its entry into the annual tournaments, the players showed considerable improvement in individual as well as team effort. They downed three opponents in their bid for the state title. The most impressive victory was against East High, a team favored to beat the Euclid five by more than several points. The Calvertmen, however, had the Euclid fans on their feet cheering as they whipped East High 63-62 in one of the most exciting games of the year. A balanced attack and the best team play of the tournament were important factors in this upset. Euclid was awarded the trophy for the outstanding team in the Euclid AA Tournament. The starting five consisted of two seniors and three juniors. Weldon Kytte, captain of the team, played center and was the main rebounding power on the Euclid attack as evidenced by his playing during the tournaments. Andy Aljancic, the other senior, played forward. Though he was not one of the starters in the beginning of the season, he showed in the games and practice sessions that he was capable of holding a position on the first string.

Other than Weldon Kytle, Dan Stevenson, a junior, was the only player with experience from the previous year. He was the jump shot artist on the team and was responsible for many of the Euclid points. Tom Davis was one of the best all-around players. He showed great promise for the following year. Dave Colbow was another player who showed promise. He was the best dribbler on the team, a fine shot, and an effective defense man. There were, of course, other boys on the team who deserved a lot of credit. They practiced just as long and hard as the first string, but did not always get to share in the praise and glory.

"Stop the game—I lost my contact lenses!"

Perlioni gets the tip on a jump ball.

Of the fifty-five boys who tried out for the J.V. basketball squad only nineteen boys received uniforms. This in itself showed the high standards required to be on the team. As Lake Erie League Co-Champs with Lakewood these boys showed their tremendous team spirit and desire. Coach Daugherty remarked that they were the best defensive junior varsity team he had ever coached. A different captain was appointed each game thereby giving each player a chance to know and experience this responsibility. Though teamwork was essential, several players distinguished themselves with their outstanding playing ability. Dennis Perkins, who was moved up to the varsity team during the last of the season, was the best foul shooter and rebounder. Roy Palmer was an excellent offensive player, while Charles Ehinger proved outstanding as a defense man. Mike Bathory proved to be the best floor leader. Improvement was the goal of each boy, but George MacQuarrie was given the award for the most improved player at the annual basketball awards banquet at the close of the season.

Wrestlers fight

Euclid High has always maintained a desire to introduce the new and to improve the old. A fine example of this was shown in the excellence of the 1959-'60 varsity wrestling team. Wrestling, as a school sport has just recently been developed in many areas, while Euclid, for many years, has had a championship team. Led this year by co-captains Roger Brown and Chuck Schlegal, the Panther matmen retained the L.E.L. and district championships, placing 9th in the State.

Taut muscles and grimaces of pain—all part of an exciting wrestling match.

It was 3:45, another hard day of school was over, and the gym began to fill with noisy wrestling fans. As a newly developed team sport with an intricate method of scoring, wrestling had become one of the favorite athletic games at Euclid High. The many students and teachers sat in their favorite sections of the gym to watch either the J.V. or Varsity matches, both of which took place at the same time. The fast-moving hand-to-hand action a wrestling match provided was one of the reasons for the growth in popularity of the sport. Led by such outstanding players as Tom McGill and Don Gillespie the 1959-'60 J.V. wrestling team was, in the opinion of its coach, Mr. Reminick, one of the best sophomore wrestling teams ever seen at Euclid High. The J.V.'s had established the fine tradition of not losing a meet since the team was formed, and the 1960 team kept this tradition with a season of seven wins and no losses.

McGill tries to take his man down, but his efforts go unnoticed. The fans are watching the varsity!

Swimmers show

Though the team's won-lost record was not very impressive, a few swimmers left their individual marks in the school's swimming history. Ron Anderson, who broke the fifty yard free style record with a time of 24.4 seconds, and Terry Trauger, who broke the pool's record for the hundred yard free style with a 54.9 seconds, both represented Euclid at the State Meet in Columbus. Jim Ricket and Jim Kos, our diver, also traveled to Columbus to participate in the meet. Cheered on by the biggest crowds that have ever turned out to watch them swim, the tankers improved more at every meet. They finished still spirited and hopeful, aware that trying, not winning, was the important thing. Swimming gave them pleasure, developed character, and strengthened them physically.

COACHES

The Euclid High School INDOOR TRACK team again proved to be one of the strongest and fastest in the Cleveland area. Much of the team's success can be attributed to the brilliant coaching of Mr. Dale Thompson. Coach Thompson provided the encouragement that was so vital to the spirit of the entire group. The desire and ability of the Euclid trackmen are not to be overlooked as very important factors in the success of the team. The one big event of the year was the indoor track meet at the Cleveland Arena, in which the Euclid team made an excellent showing. Returning victorious was one of the many rewards that made practice and hard work so worthwhile.

A strike for Mike!

Under the expert guidance of Coach Addis, this year's BOWLING TEAM showed such good form that everyone thought they would surely finish first in the league. Although they did hold the top spot for the first three weeks, they slipped to the second place position which they held for the rest of the twenty-week season. Supported by Gary Taylor's inspired bowling and sparked by Carl Eisenberg's three-game series of 605 points, a last minute rally brought the team to within one point of the league title. To come so close and still lose was not easy but Euclid's good sports accepted their second place trophy proudly. It had been fun to be a part of one of the best bowling teams Euclid has seen.

Between exams we went to the library for study . . .

The end of January signified that the 1960 school term was half over, and to every student and teacher January 27th and 28th meant mid-term exams. Preparation for the hour and fifteen minute tests varied with the individual but almost everyone found time to study. School policy had changed and failure of the first semester resulted not in repetition, but in moving on to second semester work. The days preceding exams found teachers in a flurry of activity in hasty review with the students, and helping department heads make up the tests. Many students took hours to study, while others, either because of self assurance or lack of responsibility, smiled carelessly at all the intent study going on about them.

Mid-terms mean study

We joined the others in preparation . . .

The quiet of the library was sought by many, either for study or just relaxation with a good book during the hectic two days of mid-term exams. Open all day, the library offered solitude and helpful information for students anxious to learn. The many shelves of books were constantly shifted by eager hands looking up last minute information. The librarians were especially co-operative at this time, for they knew how important it was for honor students to keep up their averages and for borderline pupils to pass.

136

And we studied,

and crammed,

and studied some more . . .

And most likely forgot the answers when the moment finally arrived!

The cafeteria was filled with hungry people and propped-up books as students rushed to eat between tests. Exclamations of relief or worry could be heard as friends greeted each other, and some people didn't eat at all. As the lunch hour drew to a close, students hurried from local restaurants to return to the school; some with crossed fingers laughed about the possibilities of ever seeing chemistry II or algebra IV, while others were seriously concerned. Teachers were just as happy as students to see the second and final exam day end, and they thought of the next day which meant more work of scoring and grading papers for them, but a vacation to the students who clamored for the doors in happy relief.

BAND INSTRUCTORS

The Music Department . . .

The instrumental groups of Euclid High were pretty important to some of the students. Music lessons and the long hours of solitary practice were just routine, for the real reward came in the opportunity to join together with other musicians and harmonize. The Cadet Band, consisting entirely of sophomore players, had thirty-eight members who joined with the Concert Band on February sixteenth to present the annual concert in the high school auditorium. The Concert Band, with eighty-seven members, visited both Central and Shore Junior High Schools, took part in the Brush Band Festival, and acted as host for the District Band and Choir Festival. The string players, who did not qualify for band, met approximately three times a week to prepare orchestral numbers for the student body. The Chevron Society, newly formed, was an honorary group of only fourteen members this year, who were ranked as first-class musicians by being able to play skillfully music of a prescribed degree of difficulty. All instrumental players regarded this distinction as a goal to be reached.

The bell rang at nine thirty in the morning and the last straggler got in his place. The chatter of voices ceased as Mr. Taylor addressed the group. Every eye was focused on him as he lifted his arms for the down-beat. The voices broke forth, usually harmonious, occasionally discordant. The EUCLID CHORAL MASTERS practiced with sincere devotion to live up to their name and the reputation they held as the best in Euclid's choral music. It was a coveted honor to gain membership in this group, for all the students who auditioned were carefully rated on the quality of their voices, their ability to sight-read music, and to carry their own parts. These serious-minded vocalists had an unusual feeling of pride and loyalty for it was each one's responsibility to keep up the morale of the entire group. They went through many contortions and discomforts to find the tone of quality for which they were searching, but the experience of standing before an audience in their blue and gray uniforms and hearing the rounds of applause was well worth the effort given.

Choral Masters lead the Alma Mater at half-time.

Sabetti.

The EUCLID CHOIR, with its many excellent voices, added to the quality of the year's choral assemblies. Proudly displaying the new blue and gold choir robes, they presented the beautiful music of the world's great composers to the rest of the student body. Many times during the year the members of the Euclid Choir combined with members of the Euclid Choral Masters to present programs of the finest music possible. Although they were not always rewarded with the applause they deserved, these singers, nevertheless, continued to practice every day, striving for better quality of sound.

Standing apart from the rest of the class in their white uniforms were the 1960 GIRLS' LEADERS. Selected on the basis of scholarship and dependability from a group of sophomore and junior girls who applied, their many duties consisted of taking roll call, aiding gym activities as referees, and helping the gym teachers to perform their jobs efficiently. The G.L.C. members spent much of their after school time in becoming skilled in sports and in learning to do their jobs well. The shrill whistle and the familiar cry, "Line up!" typified their authority and the respect with which they were looked upon by their classmates.

The girls joined together in yelling and cheering as they ran up and down the floor of the gym in a spirited basketball game. The red pinney team was ahead and if the six girls could hold their lead and win, they would be the 1960 basketball champions of the GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION. Any girl with an interest in sports and exercise could join G.A.A. and take part in intramural girls' athletics. Mrs. Fox, the sponsor of the club, stood watching impartially on the sidelines as the ball went through the basket signifying the end of the game and the crowning of a new champion team.

But I thought we were supposed to have swimming this six weeks!

Jim Ricket leads fellow Swim Club members in discussion.

After a thorough skill test, last year's SWIM CLUB members put the qualified candidates through a grueling initiation. It was not unusual during the first weeks of school to see a girl minus all make-up with straight hair or a boy wearing two kinds of shoes, both carrying hard-boiled eggs covered with hard won signatures. After this the prospective members were put through a horrible and secret gantlet in the pool from which they emerged exhausted but full-fledged members of the club. The initiation past, the real work and fun of the club commenced. Soon the timid novices became skilled cadets, confident in their ability to teach and swim any stroke from the elementary back stroke to the double trudgen crawl. In their spare time they practiced synchronized skills to be utilized in the Swim Show at the end of the year.

The NATIONAL ATHLETIC SCHOLARSHIP SOCIETY embodied an idea as old as the Greeks—a sound mind in a sound body. Encouraging boys with high scholastic averages to participate in sports and making it worthwhile for those in sports to keep up with their school work, the N.A.S.S. honored those who developed their minds as they developed athletic skills. Euclid High was very proud of her boys who were given the distinction of N.A.S.S. membership for, though they did not necessarily excel in any one thing, they were good in everything.

Sportsmanship and athletic prowess were components of the boys who were privileged to wear the gold "E" on their sweaters. Chosen for outstanding accomplishment in their particular sport, these boys were honored at various times throughout the year in special assemblies in which they received their letters and certificates of merit. It was with pride that the boy shook hands with his coach, and walked across the stage to reverently sign his name in the LETTERMAN'S record book. Humbled at the sight of the long list of names preceding his, the boy was proud to have his name written with those of the others who had helped Euclid become the school it is—a school with high sportsmanship ideals and hard-working athletes.

Girls thinking about a career in nursing had a chance to sample that profession in the FUTURE NURSES CLUB. At the compulsory meetings nursing was discussed with special speakers and among the members, and nursing colleges were thoroughly examined. In this way, girls who decided to continue their medical plans were able to choose the school best suited to the financial, social, and training problems personal to each. Some of the future nurses received practical training under the guidance of Mrs. Wise. These girls helped her during study halls in the small routine matters of taking temperatures and admitting patients. A tour of Euclid Glenville Hospital which gives an idea of a nurse's routine is now traditional each year.

Organized for students who had an outstanding record of achievement in leadership, dependability and craftsmanship, the FOREMAN'S CLUB provided an opportunity for these students to extend and enrich their school experience by practicing the techniques of group management. In addition to taking a trip to the Lincoln Electric Plant, giving assemblies for the sophomore and junior students of the industrial arts curriculum, each student was assigned to assist some instructor in the department as a foreman one shop period each day.

The KEY CLUB INTERNATIONAL is an organization of high school boys sponsored by the Kiwanis International. The members are dedicated to the service of their country, their community, their school, and their God. Many service and fund-raising projects were accomplished during the year. The club again built an outstanding homecoming float, brought the Key Club assembly to Euclid, and distributed food baskets to needy families during the Christmas season.

WORLD AFFAIRS were suddenly very frightening and important in our daily living. Students had to be prepared to wrestle with international problems as adults and they found the best way to educate themselves was participating in a world affairs group. Euclid's club progressed rapidly in the understanding of our foreign neighbors, for they realized it was only through understanding and free discussion that world-wide peace would be possible.

"Good grief, what did you do to my eyebrows?" the girl exclaimed to a member of the make-up committee. She had a minor part in the fall play and had been made up by a classmate. They laughed together about the eyebrows and talked of their desire to become Thespians members. The organization was composed of students who had earned points taking part in stage productions. Still laughing, they wiped off the cold cream and thought of their coming initiation into THESPIANS, and the enjoyment and benefits they would obtain from membership in the club.

"Watch that pig!" yelled Mr. Jenkins, as an agitated STAGE CREW went after the squealing pink animal. The pig was a prop in the play "Li'l Abner," and the stage crew found that besides handling scenery and lights their job also included retrieving run-away pigs. Taking care of all the behind-the-curtain work, the stage crew performed with speed and efficiency in helping to make Euclid's 1960 stage productions the success they were.

Early hours, a long bus ride, a tight knot in his stomach—these are experiences a member of the NATIONAL FORENSIC LEAGUE will never forget. Gaining poise and confidence in speaking is not an easy task, but these young men and women overcame their fears and became accomplished speakers. Taking almost weekly trips to contests at various schools throughout Ohio, they competed in debate, original oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and dramatic, humorous and oratorical declamation. The novice's hand stopped trembling as he gained experience and finally, those twenty-five points which, earned in the speaking contests, entitled him to become a member of the National Forensic League.

It was nearly seven o'clock and the girl was supposed to be selling tickets at the basketball game. She was a member of AD CLUB and was late for the first time. She could clearly picture her contemporaries rushing from room to room and office to office, stamping hands and checking passes, collecting tickets and conferring with Mr. Vaccariello, their sponsor. She stepped off the bus in front of the large building and ran up the walk to the ticket office in the athletic corridor.

FRIENDSHIP CLUB CABINET

Dedicated to service in the school and the community, the FRIENDSHIP CLUB, Euclid High's largest organization, met after school twice a month in order to achieve this goal. Composed of sophomore, junior and senior girls, the club was organized under a new sponsor this year, Mrs. Carter. The cabinet, consisting of six girls elected from each class, met to plan the activities of the club. Through it, the girls sent magazine subscriptions and gifts for children to some of the hospitals in the Cleveland area at Christmas time. They used the profits from a fall dance, as well as some funds accumulated from last year, to buy some necessary items for the E room. But there was time for social events too, and the biggest was the Friendship Formal, entitled "Paris in Spring," which climaxed the club's activities.

The FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA helped prepare aspiring teachers for excellence in their chosen field. Our group was the June Williams' chapter of the organization, and through it many pupils were given a chance to substitute in elementary schools. This experience was considered highly desirable for those who believed teaching would be their lifetime profession, for it showed them the problems they would meet when they were prepared to teach a class. Many worthy projects were undertaken by the 1960 F.T.A. Among them was the donation of books to the Sunbeam School at Christmas time. The F.T.A. was a voluntary organization which met after school and any student who took the time to take part in its activities was well rewarded with experience in the teaching profession.

The 1960 secretary of NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY read the scroll of new members to an audience of proud parents and anxious students. Preceded by speakers who explained the organization's reason for existence and the requirements a student must meet to be accepted, the reading of the scroll climaxed one of the most important assemblies of the year. Leadership, scholarship, character and service, explained the speakers, are the prime requisites of an N.H.S. member. Each of the students who proudly received the gold pin which signified membership in the National Honor Society was known by his teachers and classmates as a leader, and wore his pin with pride and deserved honor for his service to the school. Prospective members were rated by former members of the society and by their teachers, and an effort was made to keep their identities a secret until the induction. Exclamations of pleased surprise showed the pride the new members felt in being accepted into a nationally recognized organization as a reward for their efforts in studies and activities throughout their high school years.

President Pete Mushinko congratulates Marilyn Vincent, new N.H.S. inductee.

JUNIORS

The junior looked around him at the familiar walls, classrooms, and friends, and though he would not admit it to anyone, he was glad to be back. This was the year he would get his class ring—he could picture it shining on his finger already—and this was the year of the Junior Prom, the first dance that was especially his. As he stood in front of his homeroom thinking about the coming events his reverie was interrupted by someone handing him a “Beat St. Joe’s” sign, and he knew he did not have to plan—the year had already begun. Working so hard he scarcely had time to think, he found time, as the year passed, to participate in those clubs which would form his major interests in his next and final year. He watched as the class ahead of him graduated in the spring and felt with confidence that he was ready to meet those responsibilities which being a senior would bring.

Juniors . . . the year between

Over the babble of voices one loud voice was heard bringing the meeting to order. It was Pat Jackson, junior class president, who was presiding with his fellow class officers over the first junior cabinet meeting. The cabinet member listened respectfully to the suggestions they offered, then gave his own ideas. It was fun to consider the coming year and exciting to have a part in planning it. He could already picture himself leaving the Junior Prom, class ring on his finger, and his date carrying as a souvenir part of the decorations he had planned. He left the meeting with a feeling of satisfaction, knowing he had done his best for himself and his classmates, and wondering how they would like his work. With incredulous eyes he watched his plans pass into successful realities as the year slipped away.

THIS IS SPRING

The cold of winter faded into the tantalizing warmth of spring and the doors of Euclid were thrown open. Fresh spring air crept into the building while you rushed out on lunch hours and free time to enjoy the beautiful season. You lounged and laughed on the new grass with books or with friends. You sat on stone steps warmed by the sun, jacketless, with the sun streaming down and the wind blowing through your hair. In class you stared out the window, wondering how the warm sand on the beach must feel. Your eyes met blue skies and everything seemed new and fresh as you discussed plans for the fast-approaching summer.

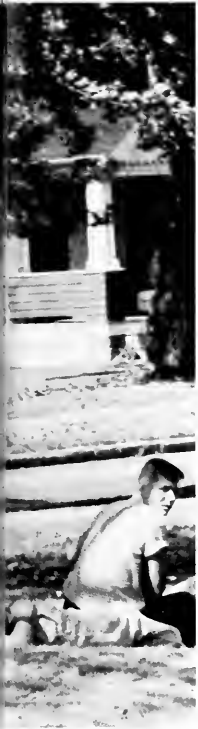

In spring a young man's fancy turns to anything but thoughts of study.

Relaxation moves

Spring was here at last and everyone wanted to be outdoors to enjoy it. There seemed to be so much more to talk about in spring, as new plans were made and new dreams were born. The Junior and Senior Proms were not far in the future, and the excited voices of girls could be heard describing "... me, in lavender net with a bow that reaches the ground and shoes to match," while boys wondered where they would get the money to take the lavender net out to eat when the dancing was done! Convertibles went by with their tops down, and for a few minutes school was forgotten while students reveled in the warmth and relaxation of spring.

SENIORS

The senior returned to school with a look of proud superiority about him. He knew almost everyone he saw and smiled condescendingly at the sophomores who looked at him with awe and paid for the elevator pass he proffered. The year unfolded in his mind. He heard the cheering crowds at the games, he saw the blue and gold waving over the rows of heads in the bleachers, he felt the intense spirit of his class as the first senior cheer passed their lips—and he knew it would happen so fast he would not believe it when it was over. The first football game, the senior party, and semester finals rushed by quickly and were gone. The senior forgot his meditations of the first day and lived only for the moment, caught in the whirl of senior banquet, senior prom, and graduation. On June 15th his last year of high school was over. He looked around in wonder and, clutching his diploma, walked away.

Seniors at last!

It was more than a new year, it was his senior year, and it was important for it would contain the most and best memories of his high school life. He wanted it to be a good year, evenly balanced with hard work and fun, so he was careful to choose those who would plan it with the best foresight and imagination. He was glad of his choice, for he saw as the year went by that the senior officers and cabinet were initiating many improvements in class policy such as planning senior privileges with the administration.

But Bill, the senior prom isn't 'til June!

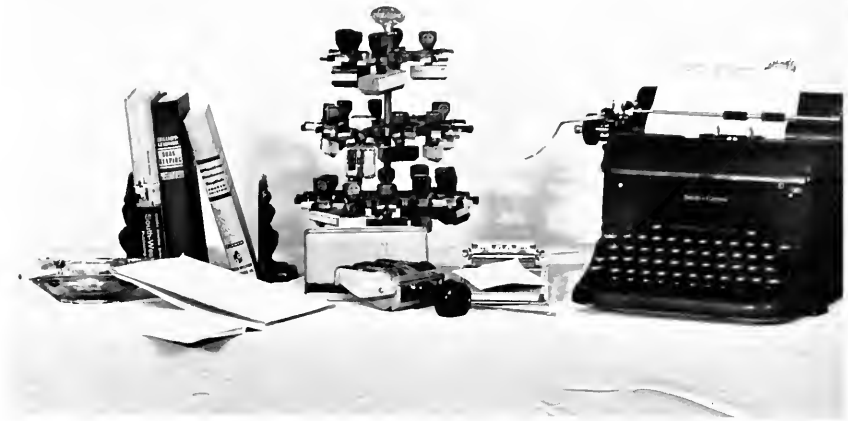

Seniors rah!!!

ADVERTISERS

As graduation drew near the senior looked toward the future. To some it would bring a college education or training in the various trade schools, while others looked immediately to the community for a beginning and perhaps, a career. Each adult member of the community has spent some of his time in dealing with the many companies and stores which comprise a major part of any developing community. People compose the city of Euclid, and through them and their needs it has grown and will continue to grow and improve. Because he was now an adult the graduating senior had to realize his part in the future of his community and use the benefits he had derived from his education at Euclid High. He would go on to utilize and develop his skills, perhaps in serving the people of his community.

ZOOMING INTO YOUR FUTURE

Public transport borrows ideas from American MonoRail

Someday you may ride to work this way because public transport officials borrow from efficient handling methods developed by American MonoRail engineers.

For over thirty years all kinds of materials have moved on monorail tracks in nearly every industry—and beginning with hand pushed carriers, today's developments include systems that are completely automatic from pick-up to deposit.

Heavy—bulky—hard to handle loads travel quickly, safely and directly to their destination—through the air. Only the research and experience of American MonoRail engineers make this equipment possible.

When this book is published and placed in the hands of the students of Euclid High, I shall say good-by to the best and most devoted staff ever to take on the job of producing the Euclidian. True, they're human, and once in awhile they shirked responsibilities, but a finer group of people I will never hope to meet and no editor could want a more loyal, hard-working staff. Each contributed his individual talents and efforts to the common cause—the best for 1960—and made the year memorable to us in his own special way. Each has his own contribution to the development of our book. Well, staff, the year which we have anxiously awaited and planned for so long is now over, and I hope Euclidian—the work sessions, the parties, the trips, the problems, the fun—will always remain close to you all. But here I must mention our friend and sponsor, Mr. James McCampbell, whose many hours of hard work and self-sacrifice will not go unrewarded. Mac was constantly at our side in all phases of planning and production; while the book remained a staff responsibility, he was always ready with help and advice on technical problems and was the one who time and again cheered us up when the going got rough. Without him, a special part of our remembrances of this year would be lost.

A yearbook with as large a circulation as Euclid's could not be produced by one staff alone, and here I wish to extend my thanks to all those who made its production possible, in particular, Mr. Clayton George and the faithful members of the Euclidian Business Staff. Well do I remember the nights they spent long hours after school in an attempt to get the records straight, and the times they lent us a helping hand when that deadline just had to be met.

To them and to countless others I offer many thanks: To Dr. Lester E. Angene, Superintendent of Schools, and Mr. Clifford G. Owens, Principal, whose interest and desire to help out in any way was greatly appreciated; to Mr. Bruce Graham, Assistant Principal, who juggled his schedule around many times so that we might carry out our plans in the most convenient way; to Dr. Jerry Bergem and Miss Wilma Gilman, deans, who excused us from classes and helped us in the scheduling of underclass pictures; to Mr. Fred Vollman who gave us invaluable aid in the planning and design of our cover and other artwork; to Mr. Donald Rinkes and the Camera Club whose generous aid was always given cheerfully when camera troubles arose; and to the members of the custodial staff who were always friendly and willing to let us in the office at almost any hour of the day or night when emergencies came up or work had to be done.

Tackling the job of getting every picture called for in the yearbook is a big one and one which our student photography staff handled nicely, but much credit must also be given to Mr. Morey Levine, Mr. Bill Rainin, and Mr. Joe Gongos of Raimor Studios. They schooled our photographers in the art of picture taking and were always ready to print all the pictures we needed with the finest methods of reproduction possible when we were pressed for time. I am also grateful for the services and advice of Mr. Bruce Wilson and Mr. Dan Mack, our representatives from Wm. J. Keller Inc., printers, and Mueller Art Cover Co., respectively.

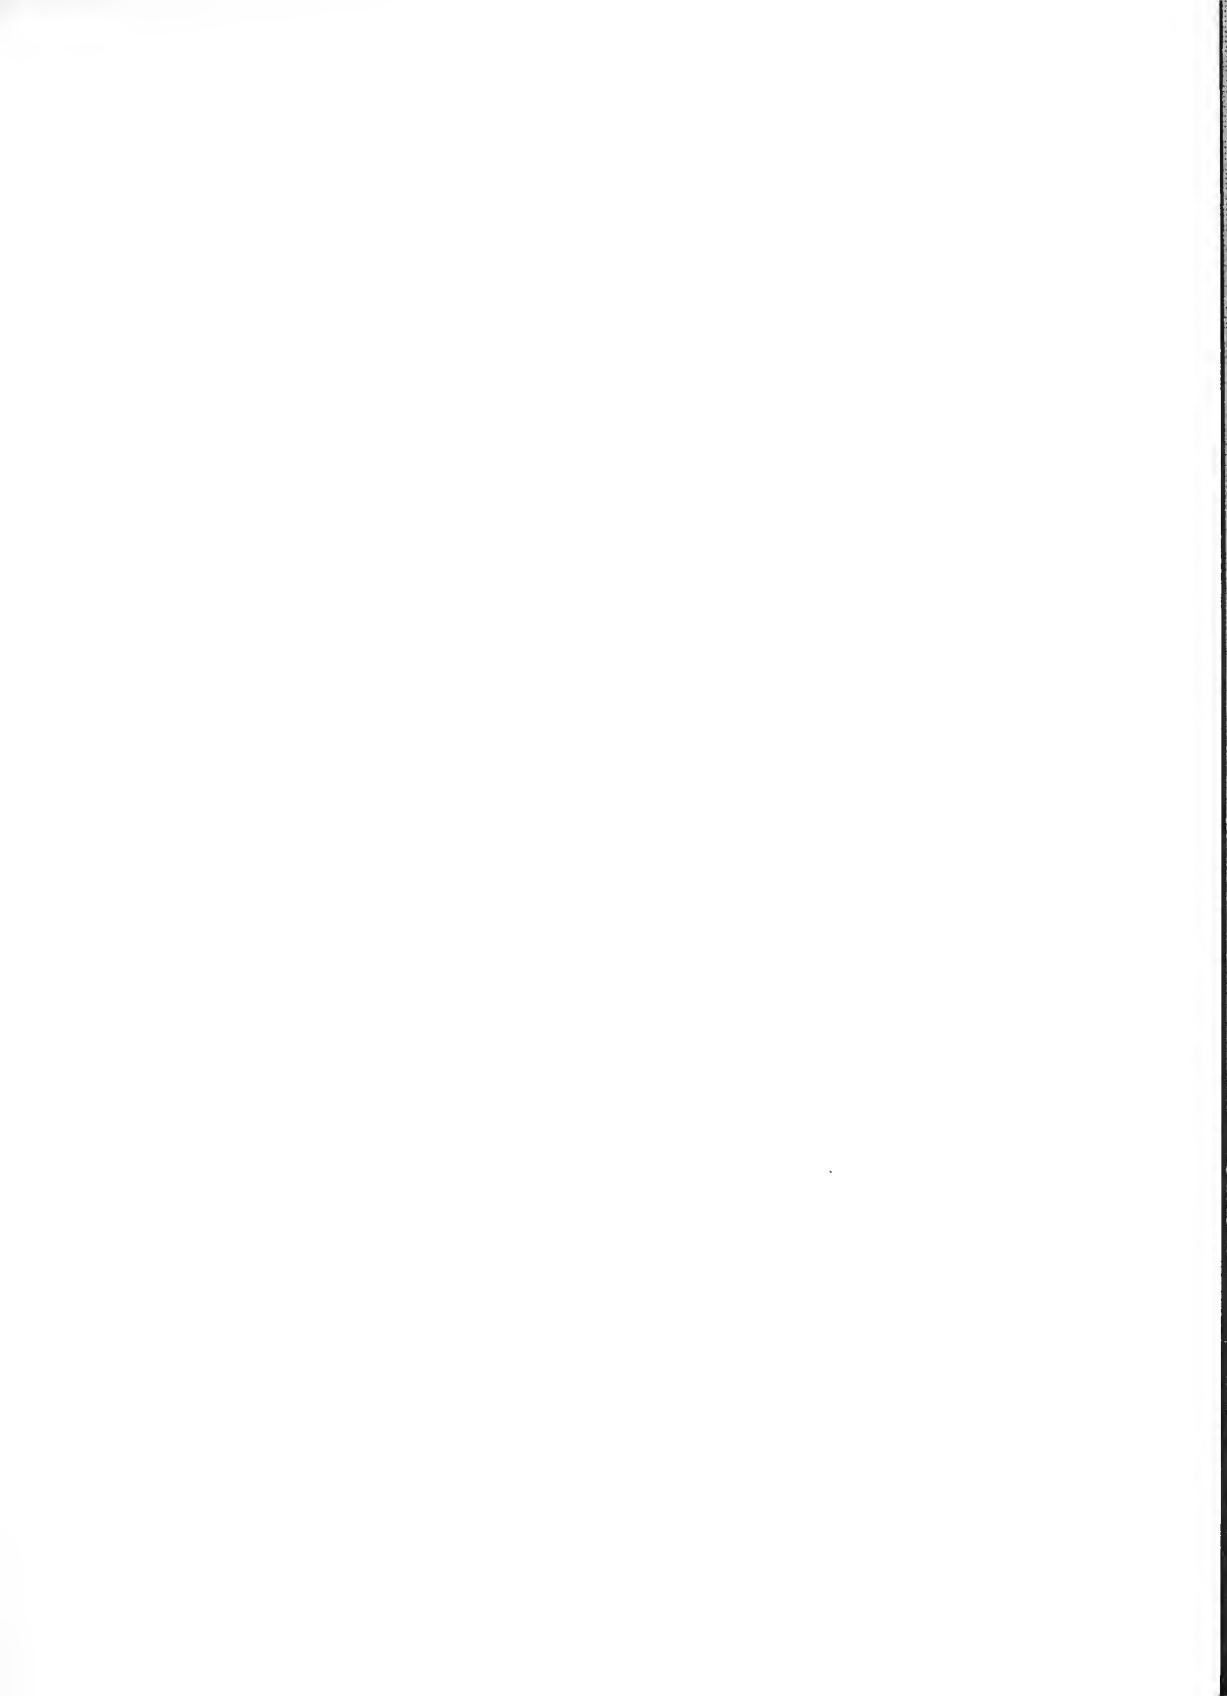

To these in particular and those who contributed to our yearbook in any way, I wish to extend deep appreciation. People—without their efforts our book could not have been produced, without their friendships our year would have no meaning. I sincerely hope that the 1960 Euclidian has fulfilled the purpose for which it was intended, and that it will bring many years of enjoyment to everyone.

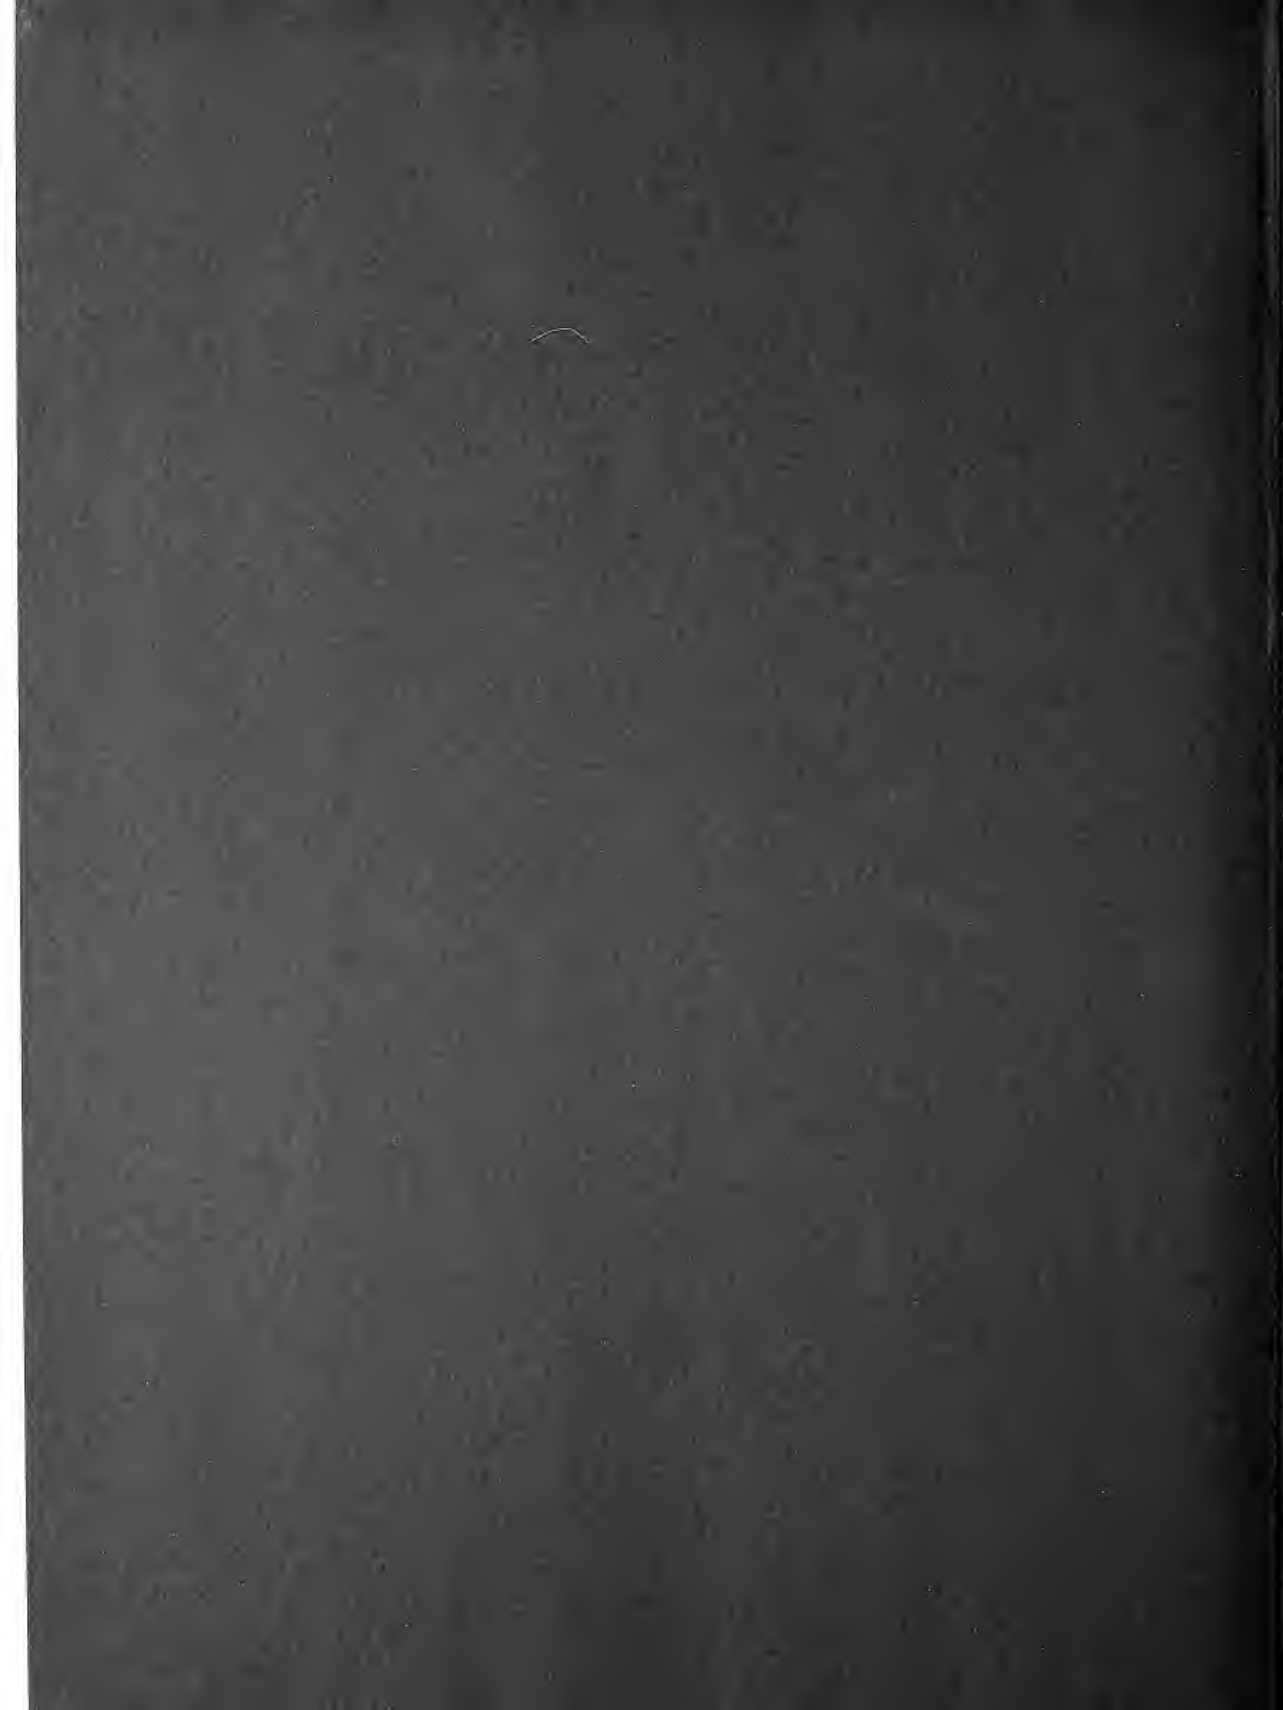

Very Sincerely,

Randy Elliott
